

A collaboration of artists and illustrators

Project Art for Nature

Creating artwork to help preserve, restore and re-connect natural communities of native species.

Call for Artists

Visual artists and illustrators with a focus on nature and conservation of natural areas & native species.

Seeking applicants for the next 3-year cycle.

2015 – 2018

Revised Application Deadline

March 3, 2015

Applications available at www.projectartfornature.org

For application materials, information, or to view artworks of current and past members: www.projectartfornature.org

We welcome your queries!

inquiries@projectartfornature.org

Please put "PAN Application Question" in subject line.

About Project Art for Nature:

Founded in 2001, Project Art for Nature brings together artists with a passion for protecting and restoring nature. Each artist chooses natural area(s) to visit throughout the cycle, and creates artwork related to their site(s) to exhibit in PAN's end-of-cycle show, and other optional show opportunities throughout the cycle.

Now seeking new artists for its fifth cycle, Project Art for Nature invites applications from artists who work

- in any hand-created media, styles, and processes;
- in 2, 3 or 4 dimensions;
- pictorially, abstractly or conceptually;
- at macro, micro or process level: focusing on
 - species or landscapes,
 - individuals or ecosystems, or
 - natural processes (e.g., evolution, decomposition, migration.)

The artists of Project Art for Nature work independently and collaboratively to mount exhibits with impact.

For more details on the commitments involved in Project Art for Nature, please visit our website

www.projectartfornature.org